

Conclusion

- The $2p-2s$ Lamb shift in Li-like ions provides an excellent possibility to test QED in the strong Coulomb field of the nucleus.
- The QED effects of order α^2 can be tested already at the present level of experimental and theoretical accuracy.
- The last unknown QED correction of order α^2 remains to be calculated - the two-loop self-energy.